Faces of Courage: Young Heroes of World War II

by Dr. Sally M. Rogow

One of the top Young Adult non-fiction books of 2003
– Pennsylvania Librarian's Association

One of the Best of the Year 2003: non-fiction books for grades 7-12
– Resource Links magazine

"Rogow never denies the history of the millions who did not survive as she brings readers close to the astonishing individual stories of young people who made a difference."

Hazel Rochman, ALA's Booklist

"Faces of Courage is a Holocaust book with a difference... [and] is a powerful, inspiring, at times overwhelming book."

Deanna Silverman,
Ottawa Jewish Bulletin

"The book shows that teenagers can make a difference against the forces of evil. The stories are written with sensitivity, creativity, and literary talent."

David B. Levy, Association of Jewish Libraries Newsletter

"The brief stories are generally upbeat, serving as inspirational tales about the power that one individual, regardless of age, can have."

Pat Johnson, Western Jewish Bulletin

"This book would be a great companion to a novel study of The Diary of Anne Frank. It will also be a powerful addition to any study of World War II and the Holocaust at the junior and senior high levels."

Victoria Pennell, Resource Links

"Not only are the stories in this collection interesting and emotionally compelling, they provide detailed and fascinating insights into the resistance movement in WWII Europe."
